

BERNARD IN THE BACKSEAT

TxDOT

Once upon a time, there was a teddy bear named Bernard.

Bernard was scared of a lot of things...

But he loved Danny — especially when Danny hugged and held him tight.

That always made Bernard feel less afraid.

One day, Danny and his family were going to the park. Bernard wanted to go too, but he was afraid.

He'd never been to the park before.

“What if there are monsters there? Or I get lost?” he thought.

But before he had time to decide, Bernard was in the car, sitting next to Danny.

Danny's mom
buckled Danny
into his safety seat.
She made sure that the chest clip was at armpit level and that the harness was snug.

Then she kissed him
on his forehead.

"If you love it, click it,"
she said with a smile.

Bernard watched as Danny reached over and
buckled him into his own booster.

As the belt connected with a “click,” Bernard realized that the seat belt felt a lot like a hug.

“If you love it, click it,”
Danny repeated. He patted
Bernard on the head.

Suddenly, Bernard didn’t feel so scared. He just felt very, very loved.
